

The year is 1912 and you are in the floating city of Columbia.

Columbia was finished in 1893, made possible by the work of the genius of Rosalind Lutece, and put under the control of the politician Zachary Hale Comstock. During the Boxer Rebellion in 1901, upon learning that the Chinese had taken Americans hostage, Comstock ordered that Columbia (a highly advanced aerial battleship) fire on the Chinese. This caused an international incident and the U.S. government called for Columbia's landing and subsequent decommission. Comstock saw this as a great betrayal and instead led Columbia to secede and remain floating independently.

The Columbia of 1912 is a beautiful city in the clouds as well as a jingoist, puritanical and highly segregated city-state with a serious religious bent. The oppressed classes are becoming increasingly belligerent and Columbia is a powder keg in need of a spark.

VIGORS COST 100 CP EACH

BUCKING BRONCO

Your hand cracks as if made of clay, revealing glowing blood underneath.

Your enemy is levitated up into the air and suspends them there for a period of time, rendering them defenceless. Lasts 10 seconds without upgrades.

A civilized man has power over fire. A refined man handles fire with finesse: DEVIL'S KISS.

Magma comes out of your hand, charring your fingers to the bone.

POSSESSION

With POSSESSION, the free will of your enemies matters no more. Make your foes blindly fight and die for you.

A small ghostly green female figure floats around your hand.

Your fingers and upper palm become stripped of their flesh and become covered in a black metallic sheen.
